CHICAGO BEATS WISCONSIN GRIDIRON WARRIORS

Exciting scrimmage in the first half of the game between the teams of Chicago and Wisconsin Universities at Stagg Field, Chicago, Nov. 24. The desperately fought contest was witnessed by 34,000 spectators, who jammed every inch of sitting space in the big stadium. The outstanding figure of the game was Captain Jimmy Pyott of the Chicago eleven, who wound up his intercollegiate football career in a blaze of glory by crashing over with the two touchdowns that gave Chicago a 13-6 victory.

THE championship of the "Big Three," Yale, Harvard, Princeton, was definitely settled on Nov. 24 when Yale beat Harvard by a score of 13 to 0. It was the first time since 1916 that the Blue had beaten the Crimson on the latter's field. The game was played under miserable weather conditions. A heavy rain soaked the athletes to the skin and turned the field into a cross between a quagmire and a lake. Even under these conditions Yale was able to win, although its swift halfbacks were badly handicapped by the mud. They scored a touchdown and added to this two field goals, at the same time holding their opponents scoreless. Mallory, the redoubtable Captain of the team, made the goals, kicking two against Harvard, as he had kicked two against Princeton, and finishing his football career at Yale in glorious fashion. Something of the accidental entered into the touchdown. It came in the second period when Cheek of Harvard dropped the slippery ball and "Ducky" Pond picked it up and ran sixty-seven

In a field of mud and water at the Harvard Stadium, Cambridge, Mass., on Nov. 24, Yale defeated Harvard, 13 to 0, thereby clinching for the Blue the right to be called the champion eleven of the "Big Three" for 1923. The weather conditions were the worst that have prevailed for years.

yards over the Harvard goal line. Yale was undoubtedly the better team and even on a dry turf would have won, but the touchdown was really a break in the game whereby fate favored the Blue. The second period had just begun when this opportunity beckoned so strongly to Pond. Harvard had the ball on Yale's thirty-five-yard line after a kick from Neale, but on the first play Cheek fumbled and the ball rolled slightly to the left. The two teams were locked in a tight embrace and not a Harvard man was near the rolling pigskin. They were several feet to the right when Pond, coming up from his position in the secondary defense suddenly shot through a small opening, picked the ball up on the thirty-three-yard line and started to run. Harvard, taken by surprise, could do nothing at all. One Crimson gladiator, the nearest to Pond, made an ineffectual stab at him and then began to pursue him, but Pond was too fast and got away to a clear field. In the first ten yards he had outdistanced all the opposition. When he tore over the goal line, convoyed by Neale and Richeson, Yale went wild with joy.

Army and Navy Football Teams Battle to a Tie in Desperate

SHAPLEY OF THE NAVY NAILED BY SMYTHE, THE ARMY QUARTERBACK, AS THE NAVY M
BAXTER OF THE ARMY, WHO FOLLO

NO football game of the present season aroused keener interest than the annual battle that took place between the Army and Navy teams at the Polo Grounds, New York, Nov. 24. The throng, which was estimated to be about 63,000, braved the inclement weather with smiles on their faces and souvenir feathers in their hats, and voices that rose and fell like howitzers in action. The skies were weeping and the ground was muddy and treacherous, but the crowd was good-natured and friendly. The rain and mud seemed to melt down all formalities. What color there was in the scene was lent by the Middies and Cadets, who marched into the field to cheer their favorites. Both teams were through the other's defense to score and the game ended in a tie of 0 to 0. The total ground gained by the Army was ninety yards, while the Navy made ninety-seven. In punting the Army outranged the Navy by a total of 539 yards to 456. The Army attempted three forward passes, but none of them were successful. The Army made one fumble while the Navy was responsible for three. There were no special "breaks" that favored one side rather than the other, and the tie score is a fair indication of the evenness with which the teams were matched.

Fifth Avenue's Great Library Corner at Forty-second Street.

FIFTH AVENUE

Highway of Literary Corners

OF the millions of people who yearly walk upon Fifth Avenue over three millions are attracted to its literary corners.

The University Club at Fifty-fourth Street has forty-five thousand volumes, regarded as the largest club library in the world with the exception of the Athenaeum of London. The Club chooses to term the facilities a "gentleman's reference" library, which means that a complete collection of the classics and general, non-technical books is included.

In what is considered the most handsomely furnished private library in the world, the members of the Union Club at Fifty-first Street have access to a comprehensive sporting library, the greater part of which has been contributed by members, and to a large collection of autograph letters, among which that of Walter Bowne, once Mayor of New York, is famous. No comfort of its members has been overlooked in furnishing the Library. The book cases in unique fashion are adorned with the seals of early printers.

And, of course, the book shops are a retreat and an inspiration.

But greatest of all and in the majestic presence of the Public Library's enormous collection are the nooks and corners of this institution in which are shown new and varied exhibitions.

There is the small exhibition room on the main floor in which is now shown Beethoven's original manuscripts, early editions of his works and of biographies, as well as relics of his personal and romantic life. In the same room last year the A. G. Spalding baseball collection, given by his widow to the Library, attracted great interest.

Of equal diversity in appeal are the present and former exhibitions in the main room, just off the Fifth Avenue entrance. Last year dime novels had the focus of attention; today, Bibles. And what a Bible collection! The famous Gutenberg Bible, the first real work ever printed from movable type; the great Bible of 1539 fathered by Thomas Cromwell, Cromwell's Soldier's Pocket Bible, the authorized or King James Bible and curious Bibles, like the He and She Bibles, the Vinegar Bible, Murderers' Bible, the Thumb Bible and other tiny Bibles are all here. Adding interest and beauty are the several hundred original water color paintings by J. J. Tissot, illustrating the Old Testament, and presented to the Public Library in 1909 by the late Jacob H. Schiff.

The Library is justly proud, too, of the permanent exhibition in Room 322 of finely illustrated books in handsome bindings, valued at a half million dollars, the gift of William Augustus Spencer.

And so Fifth Avenue, the many-sided, famous for its beautiful vistas and for its shops, has an appeal for those who love the beautiful in literature. This is a veritable multiplicity of services which Fifth Avenue renders—a multiplicity of great, unique services to the public.
